Street Paving.

The renewed mud which comes with every rain lays additional emphasis upon the need which exists in Los Angeles for some system of street paving upon the business streets of the city and that great thoroughfare, Temple street, so extensively traveled—being, as it is, one of the main arteries of travel for people living in that direction coming into the city either for business or pleasure.

The marvelous growth of Los Angeles calls for a vast amount of expenditure in every direction. It is no easy matter to keep abreast of this growth with the needed improvements. Los Angeles is not lacking in public spirit. She has not been slow to answer the demands upon her treasury. Large sums have been expended in opening new streets, and in grading, in cutting away obstructing hills, in filling ravines, in building bridges, and in laying artificial stone pavements. Many portions of the city have been considerably changed by this, and the value of property has been substantially advanced. But still nothing has been done to materially improve the condition of our principal business streets, and after every heavy rain they are hardly better than so many quagmires. We cannot afford to let this condition of things continue. Los Angeles's greatest need at present is good, well-paved streets that shall do away with the mud and nastiness with which we are afflicted after every continued storm.

Latest from San Diego.

Our very latest advices from San Diego are to the effect that the recent tropical simoom that struck the coast at that point was far more destructive than reported by the Bayonlimate papers. A tidal wave swept away all the shipping, consisting of four fishing smacks, two dories and a South American catamaran, and the peninsula is covered with wreckage. The t. w. rolled inland as far as the upper left-hand corner of Lesvitt's addition; the guests in the Horton House had to take their meals standing on the dining-table, with their trowsers rolled up and their waterproofs on; the revolving white light on Point Loma was extinguished by the storm; the newspaper offices were flooded, and neither the Sun, Union, San Diegan, World, Evening Bay or Morning Climate have appeared for a fortnight—and there was a damp time generally. And yet not a word of this terrible calamity, though sent exsnively to San Diego by the same special simoom correspondent from Simoomville in the State of Panama, has reached us through the b. and c. papers. This was wrong on the part of those able journals. They should observe the true journalistic rule, which is to let the facts come out, though the heavens fall and every subscriber on the books "stop the paper." But, come to think, the b. and c. papers couldn't bring out the facts; they couldn't even bring themselves out after the simoom smote them hip and thigh with its remorseless smoting-machine.

Judicial Farces.

[Cincinnati has had a case to deal with similar to that of ex-County Recorder Miles, and in which justice was in like manner defeated. The offender was guilty of embezzling the money of his employer to the amount of $150, but when his case was called the prosecuting attorney of the police court informed the judge that the prisoner's uncle had made good the amount of the embezzlement, and that the prosecuting witness asked to be excused from appearing against the defendant. The court acquiesced, the complaint was dismissed and the prisoner was set at liberty. Of this shameless manipulation of justice the Ohio State Journal very truthfully remarks:

And thus other young men are encouraged to commit crime, but cautioned that if detected they may be sent to the penitentiary unless they, or their fathers and mothers, uncles or aunts, are able and willing to make restitution.

Wherever such practices are tolerated the body politic is covered with ulcers, society is on the downward road, and the day is not far distant when law, justice, liberty, patriotism, religion and morals will become words without practical significance. In such a case the tree of corruption should not only be cut down, but it should be grubbed up, and trunk, root and branch burned with fire. And the honest people who reside in such a community are not able to accomplish the work themselves they should receive assistance from patriotic people in all parts of the State; for, like small-pox and other diseases, moral corruption is contagious. The pestilance has, in fact, already spread to Columbus and other cities and communities in this and other States.

When judges, magistrates, juries, police authorities and prosecuting attorneys conceive and act upon the idea that it is their province to determine what laws shall be enforced, and how, when and against whom enforced, the commonwealth is in danger, for then we have no government, except a government of official discretion, and that species of government, no matter what its outward form may be, is the quintessence of despotism.

It is not a pleasant or encouraging thought that 50,000 men are now engaged in the strikes organized in the various parts of the country. It is difficult to estimate the amount of suffering and loss arising from such a state of things, to all classes concerned. It is a condition of things not to be contemplated without a certain degree of uneasiness.

The outlook for the fruit crop of California, it is claimed, was never better than at present. In all parts of the State there are promises of abundant harvests. The fruit interests of California a few years hence will be simply immense.

The New York Tribune has this bit of wisdom which the laboring classes, and their organizations will do well to heed: In the long run organized labor will succeed according to the justice of its demands. If it demands only what is just, refusing to employ unfair means even to attain worthy ends, faithfully obeying law and seeking the permanent prosperity of industry, it will gain in power every day. But every instance of unwisdom in the demands made by labor, of lawlessness in its methods, of unfairness or unreasonableness in the measures to which it resorts, sets back the cause of organized labor, and weakens the influence of labor organizations.

A Defender of the Boycott.

To the Editor of the Times—SIR: I have just seen an article in your Sunday edition relative to the Chinese, with which I must say I cannot agree. You seem to be under the impression (and I am aware quite a number of the citizens of Los Angeles concur with you) that the boycotters, if encouraged, are apt to resort to violence. I can safely state that the contrary is the case. They, to a man, have no such intentions. The very fact of their preferring the peaceful method system of boycotting to the forcible means used in the northern part of the State is of itself a sufficient proof of my statement. You are also afraid that white labor could not be procured in time enough to fill the places of the Chinese. Now, the floating population of this State is a large one, and when the report reaches the East that the Chinese will no longer be employed in California you may rest assured of a large immigration of Eastern labor. More (in all probability) than will be required.

You need not leave Los Angeles to solve the problem. Look on the streets of your city any day in the week and you will see numbers of men seeking employment. The fierce competition for the most insignificant job proves that those men are sincere in their search for work. No matter where they go, "John" has preceded them. Hunger is a fearful spur, and is it to be wondered at that, too prond to beg (which is also a crime in the eyes of the law), rendered desperate by the pangs of hunger, and (oftentimes) the sight of his starving wife and children, the unfortunate victim of circumstances, created by the avarice of his fellowman, is finally driven to crime to preserve the vital spark in his family and himself? We will suppose for a moment that the man gets off safely with his plunder; he may get work before the proceeds of his crime are spent; he tries to lead an honest life again, but remorse for his crime still haunts him; he makes the acquaintance of a criminal, or again finds himself in distress through lack of work, he remembers the ease with which he once before supplied his wants, falls again. Arrest, conviction and imprisonment follow. He is a criminal. His children, with no protector over them, become hoodlums (his daughters perhaps worse); and meantime the sleek John sends the money to China that would have left this unfortunate man a decent member of society.

With regard to the preachers, their action reminds me of the case of the woman who had no time to attend to the wants of her own family, as she was busy making clothes for the heathen. I think charity should begin at home. According to the resolutions passed at the Tabernacle meeting, boycotting was not to be commenced till the 1st of May, giving (I think) ample time for the change from Mongolian to white labor. Moreover, when you employ or deal with Chinamen, you virtually boycott the American to the extent of the patronage you give the Chinese. Is it likely that the white laborer will attack the Chinaman when he finds that, by the boycott, he has got that employment he so much desired? Is he apt to leave his work or risk his life or liberty in a silly attack on a class who have nothing whatever to excite his cupidity? On the contrary, keep him in enforced idleness and you may drive him to acts which, under more favorable circumstances, he would never contemplate.

A Foreigner's Idea About Foreigners.

To the Editor of the Times—SIR: I was much amused when I read the article in your Thursday's issue headed "An Appeal," issued, I believe, by the Trades Council. I think it is about time the law-abiding people of Los Angeles should study the matter a little, and try and find out what class of men compose the "Trades Council" of Los Angeles. To my certain knowledge a majority of them are foreigners. I know some of the loudest-speaking members are French Canadians, who do a good deal of talking in the neighborhood of the Naliek factory. This same class of men are called, in the New England States, "North American Chinamen." Back there in the factory towns, they work for the lowest wages, and live just as cheap as Chinamen. It is nothing unusual there to see a family of twelve or sixteen living and doing their own cooking in two rooms. Most every factory village in New England has its "Frenchtown" similar to the Chinatowns on the Pacific coast. What assurance we is, that this same class of men, when they arrive on the Pacific coast, join some trades union to enable them to get work, and then shout loudest "the Chinese must go." Now the people of Los Angeles in ist not get the idea that all the intelligent working men of this city belong to labor unions. More than one half of the workingmen of Los Angeles have got independence enough to do their own thinking, and are men enough not to be bulldozed into joining trades unions, or to be pulled around by the nose by demagogues. I am a foreigner myself, and am glad that I have the privilege of living in this glorious country. When I get dissatisfied I will not try and expel other foreigners who are satisfied, but will go myself. A FOREIGNER.

"As Easy as Jumping Off a Log."

To the Editor of the Times—SIR: It would seem to me that the way, the right and honorable way, to get rid of the Chinaman at once would be easily reached, and justly, in this wise. There is always a right and a wrong way to do anything. There may be a right way to boycott and a wrong way also, and probably the difference of opinion among men about it is the way each one views the purposes of it. My judgement is that it is a perfectly right and honorable procedure, provided it is done honorably, with proper caution, judgment and fairness. Certainly, if they are not patronized they cannot stay. Let a meeting be called now and appoint a committee to wait upon all those having vegetable gardens, laundries or permanent investments (those we need for our own convenience must be protected and kept running after they are gone) and see what they are reasonably worth; it them to offer these for sale, if possible, at fair rates, and put them on the market. Call a general meeting April 1st and decide unanimously to boycott them on May 1st, giving them one month to prepare to leave, which will let them know we mean business—when they will not only be willing but anxious to sell at fair or cheap rates—buy them out and run the business. We must have vegetables after they go, and let us send them off honorably and pleasantly, not hurt or injure them in their persons or property, and thus show our superiority as citizens.

The Chorus Concert.

To the Editor of the Times—SIR: Some place in the history of the past it is written "Westward the star of empire takes its way." If there be one especial thing a person who follows the aforementioned star to the west finds out, it is that ability and culture do not remain behind when the journey from the east is undertaken.

Upon the western slope, near the shore of the occidental sea, even "Music, heavenly maid," appears in all her loveliness. The concert Tuesday night, with its audience of 3000 people, was, in important respects, a wonderful performance. Each selection was a gem, and the choruses were from the great masters. Any city would be justly proud of local talent able to interpret music of so high an order.

To the solos or individual numbers of the programme it is not my desire to refer. Each was rendered in a style evincing study and application. To do anything in the musical line well enough to interest or please an audience, requires work, hard, continued work. The muscle for voice or technical playing is made by the same process as the muscle in the mechanic's arm. Labor is the only culture. The singer or player who can find the way to the hearts of the assembled thousands, as was done last night, finds it only after a long search and studious application.

There was, in the chorus concert, an evidence of excellence deserving especial mention. To take the great works of Handel, Beethoven, Rossini, Gounod, Bellini and Verdi and present them so intelligently to a mixed chorus of singers, almost strangers to each other, and to so direct them as to bring 400 voices together in the intricate rendering, demands rare ability. How well this difficult duty was performed by Prof. Chas. E. Day, the success of last night plainly tells. To do this requires a thorough knowledge of music, not only of notation and minor characters, but of form and construction, in fact, to be master. It is but right, just and proper when one with a life experience finds, in his travels, such talent, that mention be made of it. A great treat, indeed, it was, and, it is confessed, a rather unexpected one, to hear in Los Angeles such grand music, and to hear so good directing as was done by Prof. Day.

THE BOYCOTT.

The Parading Workmen—A Boomerang Loose Among Comrades.

[From the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette (editorial.)]

The striking difference in the condition of laborers in our beloved country and in the old country is strikingly exhibited by the riots of workmen in England and France for want of employement, and the striking riots of workmen in our country because of too much employment. In England, it is stated that 40 per cent. of the workmen can not get work. In our happy country about the same proportion are refusing work, employment. This proportion of the unable seems to have become a permanent quantity in England, and this proportion of those refusing work, a chronic striking quantity in our country.

On the other side of the great water the workmen, in the unreasoning desperation of hunger, riot in destruction of property because it furnishes them no employment. On this side the workmen refusing employment riot in the destruction of property because it gives employment to the willing. On that side, the ferocity engendered by mobbery attacks the men of wealth and comfortable living, because the sight of their good things maddens the wants of the unemployed. On this side, the ferocity of the workmen who are refusing wages is deliberately wrought up and cruelly exercised on fellow-workmen who accept them.

On the other side, the wolf at the door so prods the need of employment that the question of the rate of wages is silenced. On this side the most strikes are for an advance in wages—although the prices of living have declined and are declining, and the wages of agriculture are falling—and in many cases they are upon trivial disputes of forms and rules and outside questions, upon which men throw down employment with an alacrity which signifies a condition of assured subsistence without wages.

In the "effete monarchies" of England, France and Germany, vast crowds of hungry workmen demand that the government shall enter upon great public works in order to create employment which private enterprise has failed to give. In this popular government great crowds refuse the work which private industries offer at good wages, and the greatest reform achievement of the new broom of the Democratic Administration is in breaking down a great ship-building job which gave employment to three thousand workmen directly, and several times as many indirectly.

Poles, Bohemians, Slavonians, Welsh, Italians, and other races and nationalities, who in the old country have but little more voice than serfs in their wages, have no sooner arrived in this free country than they join the striking profession of workingmen, demand a rise in wages, refuse employment, become deadly enemies to workmen who take the wages which they have rejected, and Molly Maguires, to utterly destroy the property which offers them employment. In recent times the condensed telegraph items of the daily morning papers, from all parts of the continent, have been most prominent in fires and murders, but the news of strikes now exceed these. The history of one day of strikes is an exhibition to which every American may point with pride as striking proof of the independence of our workingman.

That country is happiest in which the condition of the laborer is highest. The laborer's independence of employment and wages, contrasted with the dinginess of labor in the old world, proves that ours is the very Columbia, the happy land hailed in our national anthem. In former times the oration of the Columbian orators was to ascribe the happier condition of our people to our free institutions. Those who have observed the working of our free institutions in our police-slugger and "ministerial" forger elections, and in the abilities and economies of the several branches of city and county administration, and in the judiciary, can not deny that free institutions have given to the people a happiness which passeth all understanding. But it appears that the special happiness of the special profession of workingman has been greatly swelled by the system of self-government which they have established among themselves, over and above that of our free political institutions.

The progress of these in enabling workmen to live on strikes promises the good time when work shall be only an occasional exercise for health, and the strike shall be the normal condition of the workingman, and when the system of self-government by association shall be so perfected that no workman shall have any voice, volition or freedom in the matter of his work or wages, but shall confidingly trust to a higher and arbitrary power the subsistence of his family, and all his chance of getting on in the world by industry, energy and thrift.

The boycott, as decreed by the head center of the Knights of Labor, works like a charm. It is more effective than dynamite, and is without any of its danger to those who execute it. The central power decrees a boycott on an establishment and on all who sell its goods, forbidding workmen to buy, touch, taste or handle, and forbidding them to trade with any store on which it keeps the forbidden wares on sale. In general, it follows some disagreement about wages, or about subjecting the establishment to certain rules, or something or other.

If the establishment has replaced the strikers, it is cut off from the market for its goods. The decree brands the goods of that brand all over the country. And even if a market were open outside the place of the manufacture, it is proposed to cut it off, by forbidding the railroads to transport it. A few days ago the Knightly locomotive engineers of the Delaware and Hudson Railway, refused, at Troy, to draw the cars out of the yard, because they were loaded with the boycotted goods of the Clinton Foundry, owned by the Fuller & Warren Company, and a meeting of the engineers resolved a strike if the railroad company should discharge the engineers who refused to pull the boycotted wares. This brings the boycott into a wrestle with the legal obligations of common carriers, in which its failure seems probable.

But an imperfection clings to all human inventions, else their perfection would incline us to stay, instead of longing, as we all do, to go hence to perfect happiness. Even the boycott, which seemed about to create a heaven of earth, has some clashing friction in its working machinery. It is organized and enforced upon principle of no common, united and independent interests of all workmen everywhere. But this very fact of independence makes the boycott of the wares of one branch of industry a warfare on the industries and livelihood of other workmen. The boycotted wares are the outcome of various industries in materials, carrying, supplies, and so on.

A few days ago a boycott was decreed on the wares of a factory in Chicago, and the box-makers denounced it as turning them out of employ. A reaping machine represents not only the work in the factory, but as much work outside in materials, hauling, supplies, transportation and the rest. The boycott of the machine is a war on all the connected labor. The boycott of the beer of a brewery cuts off the wag of coopers, lumbermen, teamsters, maltsters and a lot of depending labor. When a few years ago the horse distemper became epidemic, it was found that the railroads depended on horses. The boycott of a railroad boycotts vastly more than the road, and this is of laborers.

The interdependence of the industries makes it impossible to boycott an establishment without injuring other workmen. As in the case of strikes, the charm and glee of the thing is in the idea that it is a war upon capital, whereas, like that it is in a reality a warfare of workmen upon workmen consuming themselves while capital survives.

All human institutions are imperfect. Even a political government by the people is not supremely wise. Is it probable that a voluntary institution of workmen which puts their livelihood into a popular government will be any wiser? One of the inevitable things in the institutions is that they come to be run for the benefit of the few that run them; the other is that they split up into parties and sections.

In the present dispute of the cigarmakers in New York, three different associations have been named—the Progressive Union, the International Union and the Knights of Labor, all three disputing the terms of arrangement with the Cigar Manufacturers' Association; and these were under the pressure also of a multitude of non-union men wanting the refused employment.

The boycott seems a gay and festive thing, and, as is the way of all possession of arbitrary power, there is a tendency to use it. But its power will be lost if used too frequently. And it is not so perfect an institution, nor so clearly a benefit to workmen, as to make it exempt from deliberation.

Florida.

A correspondent of the Newton, Mass., Graphic writes as follows about his trip into Florida:

"The cold weather of a month or so ago was a pretty serious thing. Many think that Florida will not recover from its effects for many years. But the orange trees were not injured as much as was thought at first. Doubtless there is a great chance now for bold speculators; many orange raisers are ruined and discouraged, and will gladly sell for much less than a fair price; they are unable to wait for another crop. In a few years the groves will bring normal prices again. It is said that the business of raising oranges is a sound one, though the risks are large, and the profits smaller than they used to be. I talked, some time ago, with a man who owns a plantation and grows about a mile out of town; he lost a good many oranges, but he believes in the business still; he says it will pay in the long run.

But this is no place for a man with no money; and he who sells a good New England farm and puts everything into a Florida orange grove is almost sure to make a terrible mistake. It is said there are thousands of such men in Florida now without a dollar. Many believe that Florida is a sham, and that it has seen its best days. It is not easy to determine whether this opinion is the result of careful study of Florida itself or a too diligent reading of the New York Herald.

Considerable work has been done on the motor road, during the past two weeks, in piling and bridging Lytle creek wash during the flood. Mr. W. Button is back East seeing to the shipment of steel for the road, and will probably be absent for some ten days.

W. S. Hooper, Southern Pacific Railroad agent, has kindly furnished us a statement of the imports and exports via the Southern Pacific Railroad at this station during the month of February, as follows: Imports, 5,995,130 pounds; exports, 3,547,600 pounds. Or in other words, imports, 2998 tons; exports, 1774 tons, which, counting ten tons to the carload, would make 300 carloads imported and 178 carloads exported, or an average arrival of 10½ carloads per day and the shipment of 6⅓ carloads per day at this point. Following is a list of exports:

San Diego Street Railroad.

San Diego Sun, March 15.]

The Sun is much gratified to learn that the street railroad franchise which recently became the property of Milton Santee has been divided with a number of our wealthy and enterprising citizens, and that the proposed line will be pushed rapidly ahead. The following gentlemen have become interested with Mr. Santee: Jacob Gruendike, H. L. Story, E. S. Babcock, Jr., Thomas J. Evans and Z. D. Mathews. A very important part of this transfer of ownership is that the three miles of road are to be completed within six months, and two miles within the following six months, making a total of five miles in a year. The rails for this road are now en route by railroad, and it is the intention to put men at work immediately to grade the road bed for reception of the rails. This is one of the most important transactions that have occurred lately in San Diego.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

ONTARIO.

A CLUB OF SHOOTERS.

Correspondence of the Times.]

ONTARIO, March 15.—Saturday afternoon a glass ball tournament took place in front of the Ontario Hotel. Friend Wilding had made ample preparations for the entertainment of the numerous company invited, and a very pleasant couple of hours were spent in peppering the glassy globes. The grounds, so beautifully laid out in front of the hotel building, presented an animated scene, indeed. Prominent gentlemen were present from all parts of the colony, and the ladies lent their countenance to the proceedings and graced the occasion by their presence. The shooting was very good, and all declared they had enjoyed themselves hugely. Mr. Purvis carried off first prize, Mr. Whitney, Sr., second, and Mr. Lynch third.

GUN CLUB.

At the conclusion of the shooting the gentlemen assembled in No. 1 for the purpose of organizing the Ontario Gun Club, whilst the ladies were being regaled in the parlor by Mr. Wilding with cake and coffee. Mr. Purvis was then elected chairman, opened the proceedings in a short and pointed speech. Thereafter the election of officers was proceeded with, resulted, First and Second Vice Presidents, Treasurer, Secretary and management were duly nominated, elected and formally installed. After votes of thanks to the Chairman and mine host Wilding, a very pleasant and profitable meeting was brought to a close. Mr. Noble Wilding is the first orange from his fine young and promising grove the other day. They were "bright and beautiful," of course, as there is no such thing as sunt or scale about here.

The Ontario Hotel has been crowded. The other hostelry is also well patronized.

Weather delightful and Eastern visitors charmed. They all declare there is no place like Ontario.

The I. O. U. W. hold a grand ball in Knee's Hall on the evening of the 5th proximo.

Traffic on the railway is immense, trains coming and going, at times, every few minutes.

GLENDALE.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Correspondence of the Times.]

GLENDALE, March 15.—From our hills can be seen three separate valleys, each so beautiful as the eye could wish to rest upon, and each as distinct in soil, color and productions as though they were States instead of valleys. Our sun, the central one, and in our minds the sun of the three; but, admitting that we are prejudiced, I am confident every disinterested stranger will say it is the most beautiful "any where around these 'ere parts." The Sierra Madre south of us have been mantled in snow since the first of the month, but they are now slowly throwing it off.

Among the news items I will mention the change of pastors at the Presbyterian church. Rev. S. L. Ward left us last week to resume his missionary duties in Persia, and the congregation has called to the pulpit Rev. T. C. Hemalhalsh, who has resided here something over a year, and who by his christian character and friendly manner, has endeared himself in the hearts of all. Mr. Hezmalhalsh was engaged as very extensive field of christian work with the Wesleyan denomination in Leeds, England, for many years, but at last was compelled to seek our genial climate for his wife's health, with excellent results. His field of labor here embraces weekly services at Cañada, Crescenta Cañada and Glendale.

We have another minister, too, in our midst, I hear, Mr. Hezmalhalsh having presented Mr. H. with a bouncing boy.

Uncle Sam has awarded us a postoffice, and our pioneer merchant, A. S. Billingsworth, is to be our "Perens, and very acceptable he will be as "Mason." The name by which Uncle Sammy recognizes us is "Mason." This will cause some confusion, unless our village fathers accept it as the regular town name, which some seem disposed to do and some do not.

The low fares East for less, have proved too tempting for some of our denizens, and they are speeding toward old homes and unforgotten friends.

R. E. PORTER.

NEIGHBORHOOD NOTES.

San Diego.

(San, March 16.)

There are upwards of 500 men at work in street improvements in the city of San Diego. Our property holders have the true grit. There will be work of summer for common laborers.

A handsome gold brick, weighing $2000, was received yesterday by the Consolidated National Bank from the Stonewall mine at Julian, and was sent to San Francisco per express last evening.

The electric light was turned on this morning at 10 o'clock. It worked excellently. To-night the five most lights and a small one in front of the engine house will be illuminated.

Some ore from a silver mine recently discovered in the county was assayed yesterday, by McMeans & Biddle, and it was found to be of paying quality. As soon as the spring opens a little better it will be worked, together with a number of other claims.

The Italian fishermen were successful in securing a goodly number of barracuda yesterday. The season for catching this fine variety of fish has now begun and a prosperous business will doubtless be enjoyed by the yachts in carrying excursion parties to the fishing grounds to take part in the sport.

The people of Riverside contributed over a thousand dollars to defray the expenses of the Chicago Citrus exhibit. San Diego, with four times the population, has not yet contributed one farthing towards displaying our citrus exhibit at Boston.

Work has been commenced in earnest at the Twenty-second street depot. A large force of teams, with graders and the implements necessary for leveling off the ground, are busy there. Time will develop the extent of the improvements contemplated. Superintendent Victor was on the ground yesterday.

The Flowers that Bloom in the Spring in Arizona.

Arizona Citizen.]

The fruit trees in the city and along the Santa Cruz are in profuse bloom, and upon many of the peach and apricot trees the fruit has attained fair size. The advanced seasons in Southern Arizona give many advantages to the horticulturist and orchardist. His products are ready for the market from two to four weeks in advance of those of any other section of the Pacific coast, and the best prices can therefore be commanded. How pleasant, indeed, it is to see the buds and fragrant blossoms upon the trees in this blessed land of sunshine, and reflect upon the figures and feelings that our northern friends will call to mind for several weeks to come. After a taste of Arizona climate, one cannot endure the gloomy, discomfortable of a northern winter again.

FINANCE AND TRADE.

Stocks and Bonds.

By Telegraph to The Times.

NEW YORK, March 17.—Government bonds steady.

The stock market was decidedly active and strong. There was a weak opening, but prices showing generally a loss of ½ to 1 per cent after a brief show there was a recovery and a very decided break, which carried prices down about 2 per cent before the close. The decline was then checked and from now with less activity prevailed for an hour, followed again by renewed weakness that continued to the close. The severest decline to the forenoon was directly traceable to coal stocks, which were conspicuous for the decline, especially Reading, which sold from 37¾ down to 36¾. Northwestern's decline was owing to rumors of a series had taken places among the officers of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad, and that further changes throughout the West was threatened. It was a gala day for the bears, the stock list showing at near the lowest figures in 18 lower than last even at 11 a. m. to-day. Opening at 30¾ and closing at 36¾, with sales of 630 shares. Money on call easy, 1½@3. Prime mercantile paper, 4@6. Silver bars, 98¾. Lead dull, steady, $4 87½; dom. $4 92½.

Have you seen the celebrated stud that G. J. Griffith recently purchased in San Francisco? He is one of the largest trotting stallions on the Pacific Coast. He is a grand and wonderful trotting qualities the following letters and notes will explain themselves. Mr. F. J. Martin, after complimenting the horse for his fine disposition and a stylish trotter, said that the horse had unquestionably cost Mr. E. Martin over $10,000, and that it was like parting with an old friend to see him go away. He then wrote the following pedigree, which undoubtedly is correct, as Mr. M. has known the animal ever since he was a colt, and well knew the owners of his dam and sire.

Miscellaneous.

A $10,000 Stud.

The horse Gen. Crook was sired by Clanbrassil, he by Lexington, he by Boston. Crook was sired by Clanbrassil, he by Lexington, he by Boston. Kitty was imported by Spalding Bros., of Boston. She was said to be about seventeen hands high, colored and now in foal to Crook. She was an old campaigner in the New England States and a favorite, being called "Old Railroad," from her great brilliancy. Both the sire of Gen. Crook and his dam English Kitty were brought out from Maine by Jason Brocket, of Canyon City, Or.

Gen. Crook stands 15¾ hands high, weighs 1,100 pounds, is a very stylish mover and has a fine disposition. He has known the horse for about two years, and I take pleasure in saying that as a stock horse, for trotters, roadsters, carriage and all purposes he will consider him without a superior anywhere.

C. B. HARTSOUGH.

Ivy Stables.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 16, 1886.

Mr. G. J. Griffith—Dear Sir: In answer to your request for a statement of what I know about your stallion, Gen. Crook, lately bought by you, I will say that he was placed in my charge when he was a two-year-old by his owner, Mr. F. J. Martin, who paid a large price for him when he was that age. I broke him and gave him a record of 2:37½ when a three-year-old, and won the three-year-old trotting stallion race at the Oregon State Fair. I never drove a colt that trotted as fast with so little handling as Mr. Crook, and his gait was perfect. I had no experience with him after that, but I am reliably informed that he has trotted miles better than 2:30, and what I know of the horses and his stock I think he will prove to be one of the most valuable horses for stud purposes on the Pacific Coast.

Very truly yours,

L. B. LINDSEY.

WHAT JUDGE HAWORTH SAYS.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 16, 1886.

I have known Gen. Crook for years, and consider him one of the best stock stallions on the coast.

SAM HAWORTH.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 16, 1886.

I have seen Gen. Crook work and trot repeatedly on Stockton track and timed him, trotting a mile in 2:35.

I consider him one of the best stock stallion on the coast.

J. R. DICKEY.

What Hickok, the great trainer of St. Julien says:

I have seen Gen. Crook work on the San Francisco track and he can trot a mile in 2:34¾, and believe he will make a splendid stock horse.

O. A. HICKOK.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 15, 1886.

I have seen Gen. Crook trot a mile in 2:34¾ and a quarter of a mile in 34 seconds.

I have frequently seen Gen. Crook worked on the San Francisco track, and timed him trot a quarter in 34 seconds, a half in 1:07½, a mile in 2:37.

CHARMEY CAIN.

A 2:23 GAIT.

I have timed Gen. Crook trot a quarter of a mile in 33 seconds.

Respectfully, H. McCABE.

After looking at twenty-two stallions in Northern California, Oregon and Nevada, and myself consider Gen. Crook by far the best to mate the best horse—having the largest and best developed trotting form, good style and color, and to my idea the best pedigree for speed and endurance of any horse I ever seen anywhere.

The animal covered only two mares in his life; two of his get when both two years old trotted 1100 pounds each and from small mares.

Having bought the horse for a very reasonable price, I can afford to stand him for the first season in Los Angeles for the low price of $50. A limited number of good mares may be arranged for by first addressing the undersigned to USE QUEEN LILY SOAP.

Guaranteed to Wash Without Rubbing.

The best proof that the Queen Lily Soap has extraordinarily merits is the fact that it compels with the public is that it is so extensively imitated and counterfeited.

These counterfeits resemble the Queen Lily Soap in appearance and style of packing very much the purity and excellence of the genuine.

The notice is necessary, as vilely injurious and dangerous imitations, liable to produce chronic inflammation of the skin, are often substituted for the Queen Lily, though they pay a larger profit.

The price of the Queen Lily is as low as consistent with the cost of making such a high grade of soap. It is carefully prepared to the quantity and the size of the cake, and is the cheapest soap for every body and for every use.

Consumers have simply to insist upon having the Queen Lily, or refuse to buy, and no substitute is offered it is for the advantage of the seller.

The Queen Lily is the finest soap known to laundry and general household use. It is made of vegetable oils, and everything used in its manufacture is the purest and the best, so it is absolutely pure.

Ladies will find this soap especially adapted for washing laces, infants' clothing, silk hose, cleaning gloves and all articles of fine texture and delicate color, and for the numerous uses about the house that are now requiring the use of soap that is above the ordinary in quality.

For the bath, toilet or nursery it is preferred to most of the soap sold for toilet use, being more agreeable, more pleasant and effective, and possessing all the desirable qualities of the finest unadulterated White Castile Soap. Respectfully,

THE QUEEN LILY SOAP CO.,
Cor. Sixteenth and Utah sts., San Francisco.

Interesting to Farmers.

In another column attention is directed to the advertisement of S. W. Luitweiler, the largest dealer in wagons, carriages and agricultural machinery in Southern California. Mr. Luitweiler has secured the agency for the celebrated Champion mowers and reapers for the counties of Ventura, Los Angeles, San Bernardino and San Diego. These machines are too well-known to dwell long on a description of them. It is a well-known fact that, in point of mechanism, strong cutting power and durability, they have no equal. The Champion company have this season put upon the market a new mower, built almost entirely of steel, which will eclipse all other mowers yet produced. The main frame, shafting, finger bar, guards, knives, pitman pole, brace, etc., are all wrought steel, thereby doing away with the great weight of surplus cast-iron that is used in all other machines, besides being much stronger. Another good feature in this machine, and quite different from all others, is the carrying wheel being located in the rear of the finger bar instead of in front, thereby enabling the operator to till the guard up or down without changing the height of the carrying wheel. Mr. Luitweiler also carries a full line of Ball Joint Mower, No. 4 combined mowers and rakers; also the well-known California Victor mowers, which are well known as one of the strongest alfalfa machines ever made. His Thomas rakes, that dump by the weight of the driver, have no equal. Mr. Luitweiler is now unloading eight cars of wagons, carriages, Planet, Jr., cultivators, mowers, etc., which were purchased at prices that will insure the very lowest rates to buyers. Do not fail to examine his new goods before you buy.

A Fine Display of Citrus Fruits—A Beautifully Decorated Hall—A Sight for Eastern Visitors.

The Pasadena Citrus Fair opened yesterday, with every promise of success, and full of attractiveness. Williams's Hall, the scene of pleasure, is beautifully decorated, and presents a charming appearance, with a suggestion of the faithful work and skilled taste which have so adorned it. The display of fruits and flowers is very fine, and highly creditable throughout. A long table running down the center of the hall, presents a series of rising tiers of deep-golden oranges and richer lemons, interspersed with exquisite flowers. Along the sides of the hall are long tables laden with fruit displayed in boxes. At the end of the hall is a candy stand. A gorgeous fancy booth is in charge of Mrs. M. C. Graham.

The fair was formally opened a little after 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Abbott Kinney presiding, and Rev. M. N. Cornelius and Col. Fitcher sitting at his side as Vice Presidents. The hall was well filled with people. Mr. Kinney opened with an address, of which the substance follows:

ABBOTT KINNEY'S ADDRESS.

This is the second citrus fair held in Pasadena under the auspices of the Pasadena Free Library. To the citrus display has been added a floral exhibit. One gold and one silver medal will be given to the finest oranges and lemons here, and one silver medal for the finest exhibit of flowers.

A year has passed since the last fair—a year of changes for the Library, for Pasadena and for the citrus interest. The Library is now out of debt. It has added over five hundred volumes to its books, and owns the land upon which it stands. All the stockholders—and every person in Pasadena should be one—can breathe easier, and feel confident that the future of the Library is assured. * * * No one thing in Pasadena has done so much to make the place what it is. It is an institution of the people and for the people, and all good citizens should aid in giving it a long and prosperous existence.

In the year just passed, Pasadena has grown almost beyond recognition. It is an important place. The population has increased over 25 per cent. Houses have gone up everywhere within its bounds, and here in the center of business we find new and commodious business blocks occupied by strong and enterprising merchants. The hum of commerce now penetrates the ear where but a few seasons past the bird fields were spread with delicate wild flowers, and covered with a cloth of golden poppies. The sailors named the mesa beyond, "Las Flores," on account of the brilliancy of the wild flowers which made a land mark for them. Of these, but a few patches are now left. The perennial orange and the handsome home have taken their place, except here in the city, where we have a rushing commerce and thrift, and the flowers bloomed and the sheep peacefully grazed, are now hotels, stores and mills. To these we are adding every day.

Thus the world moves, and the settler of a year ago is to-day an old-timer, watching with wonder at the new faces and restless bustle. The citrus interest has taken, lately, a new start in life. Six years ago the orange and lemon market was in San Francisco. The outlet was too small, and had no power to consume our products. Still, even after the completion of direct communication with the East, the rates were so high and the facilities for transportation so indifferent that the shipment of oranges to Eastern markets was in the hands of a few favored by the railroad, and the orange grower was not in a very comfortable position. The policy of the Southern Pacific before competition knocked at our door, and received a very warm welcome, was to charge all the traffic would bear. It took all the profits in sight, and left the risks to the shippers. This, of course, discouraged enterprise, and slackened the inevitable advance of the country. Its effect on the citrus industry was to bring it to a dead stand-still. My orchard was the last considerable one planted in this section for five years. There was so little in the industry that many orchards were neglected until they became perfectly worthless. It only takes about two years of neglect to finish an orange orchard. Thus the policy of the railroad was injurious to the interest of their section, to the people living in it, and to the interests of the railroad as well.

The real interests of the people and the railroads are doubtless identical. A fair and reasonable price for transportation develops and maintains traffic. A fair and reasonable profit must, in the long run, insure the best maintained service. A railroad manager's business seems now to be almost anything but legitimate railroading. Politics, obtaining land grants, subsidies and gifts, making combinations, watering stock, floating loads, paying taxes (?), etc. The railroad magnate gets his profits out of the water. The milkman gets his profits out of the water. The whale that swallowed Jonah got its Prophet out of the water. It is a wonderful country. We get the water and throw the whale. The railroad man throws in the water and does not throw in the railroad. Only a slight difference. Railroad commissioners, plastic legislatures, even the courts can not change them. But there is a little thing that does change, it is a plain, simple little thing—"competition." It may it live and flourish. Under this impetus everything is alive. The citrus interests are again active and planting, new roads are being made and good prices realized all round. The orange grower is to-day in a safer and more lucrative business, not better than others around us, for it requires capital, patience and vigilant hard work. But one thing is under the Protective Union, will give the producer a fair return for his investment and labor. The success of the citrus fruit culture depends on our ability and the continuance of our springs and streams.

Both of these are closely connected with the preservation of our forests and brush lands on our mountains. Denuded and glaring rocks in place of the present trees and chaparral will make our climate more severe in its extremes. The water will run off, as it now does in denuded places, in torrents, destructive to the valley lands; and the springs and streams, having no reservoir from which to drain, will diminish or dry up. At the Coyote Hills, near Los Angeles, there was once the old house, a spring and large bogby place. Recently a forest of willows from which the water supply of this spring place came, was cut down and destroyed. The spring is now dry, and where the bog was a crust of white alkali stares at the sun. Here is something at our door to go and think of. No man who has been here three years but has noticed the changed character of the above Rose stream. Formerly it ran from wooded mountains through a wooded cañon. Wood cutting and fires have changed part of its course, fortunately only the lower part. But the channel is wider, is filled in each channel with but little sand, has never deposited sand in its bed from the Devil's Gate to Los Angeles, and runs over a broad, shallow stream, ready at any moment to change its course. It is but a little thing, but it shows that the damage wrought in other lands by forest destruction on water sheds will be our lot also if not stopped. Travelers and tourists tell me that a stock raiser has for several years burned off the brush in the back ranges of the Sierra Madre, where the tributaries of the Soledad cañon arise—to improve, as he thinks, his stock range. Look at the consequences. Floods that have interrupted travel and done more damage in a day than all this man's range and cattle are worth or ever will be. The citrus interest should organize with the other interests of the country to put an end at least to the carelessly or maliciously set fires that every year waste so much valuable mountain land good for preserving our springs.

Labor is a great problem for the fruit men of California to take hold of. Important changes are taking place in the relations of labor to capital, often attended with much discussion and disfeeling, sometimes with violence. The rule in political science is that when the poor, or any oppressed class, obtain power, their acts and excesses bear a ratio to the abuses and injustice to which they have been subjected. Therefore, in considering labor disorders it should be remembered that it is not so much any particular riot that should be struck at as the wrongs which lay behind it and which caused it. Men in masses do not riot and risk their lives and the subsistence of their families for nothing. So, when disorders occur, one may be sure that there is a big screw loose somewhere in society. In California the problem is complicated by the presence of an alien race of laborers. [The speaker here discussed the Chinese labor problem, going over familiar ground.]

The other course is to quietly and peacefully diminish the Chinamen. Let them go back to China. Some inconvenience will attend this plan in no greater measure than in that of the citrus fruit culture. But, my fellow-farmers, we can well afford a little inconvenience to-day which will be repaid a hundred fold to-morrow. Only a little trouble, a little stirring about and it is done. Let us all stand in, then, for our own people, for the working men and women of our own flesh and blood. Let us protect them from this desperate contest with famine and keep a heritage for the children who are to follow us. Yes, my friends, there are some shadows in our sunny path, but I am confident that the good sense and patriotism of our people will dispate by fire. Nothing can stop the material progress of this magnificent country. It has a large area of rich soil, good water and a climate that is unequalled on this earth for agriculture, for manufacture, for health and for pleasure. The future is as bright as the rows of oranges glowing in gold upon these tables.

I now declare the fair open.

Mr. Kinney was followed by Hon. R. F. Del Valle, who delivered a very felicitous and pleasing address.

J. W. McKinley, City Attorney of Los Angeles, was the next speaker, and his remarks were timely and interesting.

A well-executed piano solo by Miss Maynard closed the afternoon's exercises.

In the evening there was music by the Pasadena band, and other exercises.

To-day is "Newspaper Day," and much is to be made of it. In the evening there will be singing by well-known amateurs, and good instrumental music.

A pleasant feature of the fair, in its commissary department, presided over by the most expert housekeepers of Pasadena. The ladies serve lunch from noon to midnight. In the evening tea will be served by Japanese ladies, who will present a cup and saucer to patrons who expend 25 cents.

The programme for to-morrow will be the same as already announced. The fair will close to-morrow evening, unless the rain continues, in which case it will probably be held over into next week. There will be a dramatic entertainment Saturday evening—and Pasadena is famous for the excellence of its amateur drama.

The TIMES has a representative on the ground, and will give a liberal account of the fair, which is well worth a visit, especially by our guests from the frozen East. A list of the entries will be published to-morrow.

Trains for Pasadena leave the Downey avenue bridge at 8:45 a. m., 3 and 5:30 p. m.; returning, reach this city at 8:05 and 10:45 a. m., and 4:57 p. m.

THE RAILROADS.

The A., S. A. & L. A. R. R.—General Notes.

There has been no further change in the aspect of the railroad war, despite the confabulation of the bosses, and the hints of an adjustment next week. Rates for passengers remain at the same $5 notch, and those for freight have stuck in their same go-as-you-please hole. There is very heavy travel both in and out, and over both lines. The California Southern train, which arrived yesterday morning at the depot an hour late, brought a big crowd of people, and so did the Southern Pacific trains yesterday. Warner Bros. & Crosby are doing a hundred people out by the Atlantic and Pacific this morning. The down-town ticket offices are doing a good business daily.

NOTES.

The west-bound express was on time yesterday. That from the north was three hours late.

As will be seen by list elsewhere, a Raymond & Whitcomb party will arrive here in two Pullmans on Saturday.

The private car of H. B. Cobb, one of the directors of the A., T. & S. F railroad, also a heavy stockholder in the C. S. railroad, is on the sidetrack near the depot.—Riverside Enterprise.

MISSIONARY WORK.

Annual Meeting Woman's Presbyterian Missionary Society.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Presbyterian Home and Foreign Missionary Society began yesterday in the First Presbyterian Church, and despite the unpropitious weather, was well attended. Delegates were present from a large number of churches in Southern California. The exercises were interesting, particularly Mrs. Clark's paper, Mrs. Condit's paper, the "Plea for Nations," and the songs and recitations by scholars of the Spanish school under the direction of their teacher, Miss Ida Boone. The "Plea for Nations," under the direction of Mrs. Condit, presented fourteen young ladies in costumes representative of various nationalities, who carried out an appropriate dialogue, interspersed with songs. The Celts Celebrate His Natal Day.

PROCESSION AND SPEECH-MAKING.

A Very Pleasant Anniversary Celebration Despite the Rain—Subsequent Proceedings.

The day dearest to all Irish hearts—the birth anniversary of Ireland's patron saint—was duly celebrated by the Celts of Los Angeles yesterday, under the auspices of the Ancient Order of Hibernians. The unexpected rain beginning shortly after noon was a serious drawback to the outdoor proceedings projected, but despite the drizzle a very fair procession formed in front of Hibernian Hall in the Downey block, marched up to the plaza, and then tramped martially down to Turn Verein Hall, where the literary exercises took place. Michael Hopkins was Grand Marshal of the procession.

The exercises in Turn Verein Hall were interesting and well attended. Terence Cooney was President of the Day. The exercises opened with "Hail Columbia" and "The Harp That Once Thro' Tara's Halls," by the band.

President Cooney made some appropriate remarks on the associations of the day, and introduced Rev. Father Carew, who delivered an interesting address, chiefly historical, on the condition of the Irish in Ireland. He also spoke of the Irishman in America, his courage, persistence and loyalty to his faith, his native and his adopted country.

After the band had played "Wearin' o' the Green," James C. Daly spoke very eloquently of the associations aroused by the day. He drew a pathetic picture of the partings of the Irish exile from his green isle when coming to America. A point which he impressed very strongly on his audience was that, with an Irishman now an American, perfect loyalty to America is the first duty of all, and that nothing should be allowed to sully his allegiance to the land of his adoption. This, however, does not imply forgetfulness of old Erin. He will be truest to the new home who does not turn traitor to the old. An English influence follows the Irishman to this country, and tries to stigmatize him unfairly for all he does and because he is Irish. There is an Anglomaniac clique here too ready to take up the cry. But it is un-American. The Irish are here, and under treaty stipulations, not as transient leeches, but as permanent citizens who try to be good ones. They have a permanent place in America. They have made a broad page in American history. The noblest blood of Ireland and America flowed on the same fields, and drenched the same sod. Beneath that sod, undivided, sleep thousands of Irish and of native Americans. If they love their adopted country well enough to be among its bravest defenders, why call the Irish aliens? Mr. Daly denounced the methods of outrage and assassination, but felt that Irish-Americans are free to assist their native land to liberty by their sympathy and money.

After further Irish melodies by the band, Mr. Smith, of New York, spoke of the necessity of preserving union among Irishmen wherever found, and of using all efforts for the freedom of Ireland that may be consistent with good American citizenship.

President Cooney closed the meeting with a few appropriate remarks; the band played "Star Spangled Banner," "America" and "God Save Ireland," and the gathering dispersed.

An adjournment was had to Hibernian Hall, where refreshments were indulged in. It is needless to appriate the occasion were made by Father Carew, Mr. Daly, President Cooney, John O'Neil and Michael Hopkins. Patrick Boylan said he was the only That One Thro' Tara's Halls." Mr. Daly recited 'Shamus O'Brien," and another gentleman gave "Fontenoy."

Last night the Celts had a grand time in the Emerald Club rooms, the jollity lasting well into the morning.

Beecher on Advertising.

"I am glad that the doctor cured him. I am glad that he put the paper in it into the paper that he could cure him. And if any doctor is certain he can cure such diseases and don't put it in the paper, I am sorry. What a pity it would have been had that doctor come to town with the wealth of science and experience, and gone away leaving him uncured! What a pity it would have been if he had been so prejudiced against advertising as to read the newspapers certificates of the doctor and give him the go-by as a quack! What are newspapers for, if not to circulate information? What more valuable information is a newspaper give than one to tell a sick man where he can be cured? If a man has devoted his life and his labor to the study of a special class of diseases, the necessity of his saying so becomes all the more pressing. His duty to advertise becomes imperious. A really able man, whatever be his gifts, makes a great mistake if he fails to use those gifts through want of advertising."

The above extract, from an able article by the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, embodies a sound view of the necessity of advertising. Hundreds of men have not advertised, and published numerous certificates from well-known persons whom he has cured, how many would know in a place with so large and so transient a population as Los Angeles, that there was a doctor among us who gave cure that most troublesome of all complaints —catarrh—whether it affects the nose, throat or lungs? How many of our leading citizens would now be in their graves from consumption if they had not learned of his successful treatment, with medical inhalations, through advertising? Dr. Davis has been located for two years at 45½ N. Spring street, this city, doing his good work, and we hope that he will continue to prosper as in the past.—Adv.

Trained Servants—The Best Way to Boycott the Chinese.

The Immigration Association of Southern California has taken advantage of the low rates to the Atlantic seaboard and is about to dispatch a second special agent to England (one being already there) to bring out a large number of trained servants to take places here at from $15 to $20 per month. We must be able to guarantee them places before they start. Any who wish now to secure reliable help can make the arrangement by signing an agreement to employ one or more of these girls as long as they are satisfactory. The names of persons applying for servants will be entered in a book and they will be supplied in the order in which the applications are received. The office of the association is 57 N.
